ROLLING UP OUR SLEEVES:

The Nitty Gritty Work of Plan Commissions

Tuesday, July 8, 2008

9 a.m. to 3 p.m., EDT

(registration at 8:30 a.m.)

Indiana Farm Bureau Building

225 S East St

Indianapolis, IN 46202

Nitty Gritty is all about the ins and outs of community planning. This one-day session will cover the legal framework and tools and techniques associated with effective community planning. Local elected and appointed officials, local and state agency staff, and citizens involved or interested in community planning are invited to learn more about this important local function.

The curriculum includes sessions on the basic legal framework of planning, comprehensive planning, zoning, subdivision control and defensible decision-making. Participants also will have extensive opportunities throughout the day to pose real local issues for discussion.

PRESENTERS

K.K. Gerhart Fritz, AICP, principal and owner of The Planning Workshop, will share her extension planning experience from the public and private sectors. She regularly provides training to citizen planners around the state and is currently the chair of the Citizen Training Committee of the Indiana Planning Association.

Mark Spelbring, Parke County Extension Director, has extensive experience and training on land use issues. He has been a member of two county plan commissions for 20 years and is a member of the Purdue Land Use Team.
